[1] The letters italicised in the text of this Triad and in the poem Anrec Vryen are in the MS. traced over in ink by a later hand, the original writing being now only occasionally discernible underneath; and the tracer has sometimes altered the original r's, 6's, and w's to those of his own time (15th or 16th century).

[2] Some of the top of the original 6 in this word remains. I do not think it possible that it can have been a v.

[3] Th added after a in the same hand as the addition to Triad 14.

[4] There is space for i. The word cannot have been taleitheu.

[1] There is a space for a stop and for one letter (of which traces remain) before hyn[n]y, which itself seems fairly certain, though faint. The reading here was evidently different from those of the other versions of this Triad, but the text is ungrammatical, and must be corrupt.
